ABSTRACT

The game of Cricket in India is a passion that binds people from different religions, political affiliations, languages and economic background. Introduced by the British when they ruled India, the game is played by across the globe by a handful of common-wealth nations such as India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, West Indies, Zimbabwe, Bangladesh, Britain and other new entrants. The number of people who watch and follow cricket in these cricket-playing nations is collectively more than a billion. Millions of people watch matches between rivals such as India and Pakistan and between England and Australia.

The IPL T20-20 event has become very successful in cricket crazy India. It represents a fast paced, growing and emergent India that seeks glamour, entertainment and good cricket. The game has seen unprecedented amount of player fees, high franchisee fees, glamour and entertainment and its success is widely accepted. However, the sheen seems to be wearing off as seen in reduced viewership and TV ratings. This case study examines the event from the business lens. The paper raises and answers ten key issues about the game, its viability and the future. Also covered in this case study is an analysis of its unique features, the business and revenue model and entertainment aspects.

TV transmission rights and advertisements form the main revenue stream for the matches. Sony TV and the World Sports Group will pay the BCCI, 1 billion USD for a 10-year deal. The Times Internet Limited, a part of the Times Group Publication has successfully won the global rights for Internet, radio, mobile rights, and TV rights in some territories at a cost of 261.6 Crore INR for four years.

Based on Major Base Ball League matches of USA and the English Premier League football cup of UK, the business model plans to create a win-win situation. Mr. Lalit Modi, the former Chairman of IPL designed and introduced the IPL format for in 2008. Team members from national and state level cricket associations of India and top players from other cricket playing nations play in the event. A Franchise owns a team and the players are 'purchased' for a season at an auction. Each player commands a price based on his playing record and current form. The bidding follows specific rules with a cap on the total amount that each team can spend. 'Round Robin Play' system is used in the initial stages along with knock out stages in the semi finals and finals. The objective for the game is to score as many runs as possible in an over and big hits increase viewer's interest. The game is a version of the new format of Twenty 20 cricket.

CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION

1.1 HISTORY OF IPL

The Indian Premier League (IPL) is a men's T20 franchise cricket league in India. It is annually contested by ten teams based in seven cities and three states. The league was founded by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. Brijesh Patel is the incumbent chairman of IPL. It is usually held annually in summer across India between March to May and has an exclusive window in the ICC Future Tours Programme.

The IPL is the most-attended cricket league in the world. In 2014, it was ranked sixth by average attendance among all sports leagues. In 2010, the IPL became the first sporting event in the world to be broadcast live on YouTube. The brand value of the IPL in 2022 was ₹90,038 crore (US$11 billion). According to BCCI, the 2015 IPL season contributed ₹1,150 crore (US$140 million) to the GDP of the Indian economy.

So far there have been fifteen seasons of the IPL tournament. The current IPL title holder franchise is Gujarat Titans, winning the 2022 season and their first season.

On 13 September 2007, on the back of India's victory at the 2007 T20 World Cup, BCCI announced a franchise-based Twenty20 cricket competition called Indian Premier League. The first season was slated to start in April 2008, in a "high-profile ceremony" in New Delhi. BCCI vice-president Lalit Modi, who spearheaded the IPL effort, spelled out the details of the tournament including its format, the prize money, franchise revenue system and squad composition rules. It was also revealed that the IPL would be run by a seven-man governing council composed of former India players and BCCI officials and that the top two teams of the IPL would qualify for that year's Champions League Twenty20. Modi also clarified that they had been working on the idea for two years and that the IPL was not started as a "knee-jerk reaction" to the ICL. The league's format was similar to that of the Premier League of England and the NBA in the United States.

In order to decide the owners for the new league, an auction was held on 24 January 2008 with the total base prices of the franchises costing around $400 million. At the end of the auction, the winning bidders were announced, as well as the cities the teams would be based in: Bangalore, Chennai, Delhi, Hyderabad, Jaipur, Kolkata, Mohali, and Mumbai. In the end, the franchises were all sold for a total of $723.59 million. The Indian Cricket League soon folded in 2008.

Players of Pakistan are not allowed to take part in the league since the 2008 Mumbai terrorist attacks, due to the involvement of Pakistan in that attack, 166 people lost their lives and 238 were gravely injured. The odious attack widespread angered many Indians, resulting in a total ban of Pakistani players in the IPL.

On 21 March 2010, two new franchises – Pune Warriors India and Kochi Tuskers Kerala – joined the league before the fourth season in 2011. Sahara Adventure Sports Group bought the Pune franchise for $370 million while Rendezvous Sports World bought the Kochi franchise for $333.3 million. However, one year later, on 11 November 2011, it was announced that the Kochi Tuskers Kerala side would be terminated following the side breaching the BCCI's terms of conditions.

Then, on 14 September 2012, following the team not being able to find new owners, the BCCI announced that the 2009 champions, the Deccan Chargers, would be terminated. The next month, on 25 October, an auction was held to see who would be the owner of the replacement franchise, with Sun TV Network winning the bid for the Hyderabad franchise. The team would be named Sunrisers Hyderabad.

Pune Warriors India withdrew from the IPL on 21 May 2013 over financial differences with the BCCI. The franchise was officially terminated by the BCCI, on 26 October 2013, on account of the franchise failing to provide the necessary bank guarantee.

On 14 June 2015, it was announced that two-time champions, Chennai Super Kings, and the inaugural season champions, Rajasthan Royals, would be suspended for two seasons following their role in a spot-fixing and betting scandal. Then, on 8 December 2015, following an auction, it was revealed that Pune and Rajkot would replace Chennai and Rajasthan for two seasons. The two teams were the Rising Pune Supergiant and the Gujarat Lions.

The venue for the 2020 season was moved due to the COVID-19 pandemic and games were played in the United Arab Emirates. In August 2021, the BCCI announced that two new franchises would join the league starting from the 2022 season. It was also announced that the franchises would be based in two of the six cities shortlisted by the BCCI; Ahmedabad, Lucknow, Cuttack, Guwahati, Ranchi and Dharamshala. In a closed bidding held on 25 October, RPSG Group and CVC Capital won bids for the two teams. RPSG paid ₹7,000 crore (US$880 million) for Lucknow, whereas CVC won Ahmedabad for ₹5,200 crore (US$650 million). The teams were subsequently named Lucknow Super Giants and Gujarat Titans.

The 2008 Indian Premier League season was the inaugural season of the Indian Premier League, established by the BCCI in 2007. The season commenced on 18 April 2008 with the final match was held on 1 June 2008. The competition started with a double round robin league stage, in which each of the 8 teams played a home match and an away match against every other team. These matches were followed by two semi-finals and a final. The tagline was, Tu laga dum!(Put all your power!).

In a match which went down to the last ball, Rajasthan Royals defeated Chennai Super Kings in the final to win the title, with Yusuf Pathan named the player of the match in the Finals and Shane Watson adjudged the player of the tournament. Sohail Tanvir won the purple cap for being the top wicket-taking bowler while Shaun Marsh won the orange cap for leading run-scorer in the tournament. Shreevats Goswami was awarded the best under-19 player award and the special award for Fair Play was won by the CSK.

The 2009 Indian Premier League season, abbreviated as IPL 2 or the 2009 IPL, was the second season of the Indian Premier League, established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tournament was hosted by South Africa and was played between 18 April and 24 May 2009. It was the second biggest cricket tournament in the world, after the Cricket World Cup, and was forecast to have an estimated television audience of more than 200 million people in India alone. The tagline was Divided by nations, United by IPL.

As the second season of the IPL coincided with multi-phase 2009 Indian general elections, in the aftermath of the 3 March 2009 attack on the Sri Lanka national cricket team the Government of India refused to commit security by Indian paramilitary forces. As a result, the BCCI decided to host the second season of the league outside India. On 24 March 2009, the BCCI officially announced that the second season of the IPL was to be held in South Africa. Though India did not host the second season, the format of the tournament remained unchanged from the 2008 season format.

The IPL injected approximately US$100 million into South Africa's local economy. In addition, the BCCI signed an ₹ 82 billion (US$1.63 billion) contract with Multi Screen Media to broadcast matches live from South Africa to India.

The IPL was hosted successfully in South Africa and was hailed as an "extraordinary" accomplishment. The tournament was particularly praised for globalizing cricket and had set record television viewership. The tournament was won by Deccan Chargers, who beat the Royal Challengers Bangalore in the final.

The 2010 Indian Premier League season, abbreviated as IPL 3 or the 2010 IPL, was the third season of the Indian Premier League, established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tournament was hosted by India and had an estimated television audience of more than 200 million people in the country. It was played between 12 March and 25 April 2010. It was also the first ever cricket tournament that was broadcast live on YouTube. The final four matches of the tournament were screened in 3D across movie halls in India. The tagline was Saare jahan se achha (a tribute to India).

The tournament was won by the Chennai Super Kings, who defeated the Mumbai Indians in the final played at Mumbai. The purple cap went to Pragyan Ojha of Deccan Chargers, while the orange cap and the player of the tournament award were awarded to Sachin Tendulkar of the Mumbai Indians. Saurabh Tiwary was declared the U-23 success of the tournament, while the Chennai Super Kings won the Fair Play.

The 2011 Indian Premier League season, abbreviated as IPL 4 or the IPL 2011, was the fourth season of the Indian Premier League, the top Twenty20 cricket league in India. The tournament was hosted in India and the opening and closing ceremonies were held in M. A. Chidambaram Stadium, Chennai, the home venue of the reigning champions Chennai Super Kings. The season ran from 8 April to 28 May 2011. This season the number of teams in the league went from eight to ten with the additions of the Pune Warriors India and the Kochi Tuskers Kerala. The tagline was Dum laga ke mara re ! (hit with power !)

The tournament was won by the Chennai Super Kings for the second successive season defeating Royal Challengers Bangalore by 58 runs in the final in Chennai, with the winning team's Murali Vijay being named Man of the Match. With this win CSK became the first, and till 2014 the only team to have won the IPL on more than one occasion. Despite Bangalore failing to win the title, one of the team's players, Chris Gayle was named as the tournament's best player. He scored 608 runs in twelve innings – the most in the tournament – as well as picking up eight wickets, having joined the team after the start of the season due to an injury to another overseas player, Dirk Nannes. Mumbai Indians' Lasith Malinga set a new record for most wickets taken within an Indian Premier League season, claiming 28 wickets during the campaign, but Mumbai had to settle for third place in the tournament, having lost to Bangalore in the second qualifier. Chennai, Bangalore and Mumbai represented India in the Champions League 2011 tournament in September. The Fair Play Award was again won by the Chennai Super Kings for topping the fair-play table.

The 2012 Indian Premier League season, abbreviated as IPL 5 or the IPL 2012 or the DLF IPL 2012 (owing to title sponsorship reasons), was the fifth season of the Indian Premier League, initiated by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007 with the first season played in 2008. The tournament began on 4 April and ended on 27 May 2012. Kolkata Knight Riders were the winning team, beating defending champions Chennai Super Kings by five wickets in the final. This season the number of teams in the league went from ten to nine with the termination of Kochi Tuskers Kerala.The tagline was Aisa mauka aur kaha milega? (where will you get such an opportunity ?)

Despite a slow start, IPL 5 earned a higher cumulative viewership than any previous edition of the IPL. The cumulative reach for 74 IPL 5 matches was recorded at 163 million against 162 million for 73 matches in IPL 4, and the final match had a higher reach than any previous final. The IPL 2012 edition was the most competitive season of which produced many nail biting finishes. In the 2012 season, there were 19 matches which produced results in the last over, and a couple of them produced results in the last ball. There were also 6 matches in which team won by a margin of less than 10 runs. Near the end of the season, the season faced various hurdles including a spot fixing case, which allegedly included 5 players caught on a sting operation carried on by a local news channel.

The top four teams of the tournament (Kolkata Knight Riders, Chennai Super Kings, Delhi Daredevils and Mumbai Indians) represented India in the 2012 Champions League Twenty20. The Fair Play Award was won by Rajasthan Royals, while Kings XI Punjab batsman Mandeep Singh was named the tournament's "Rising Star" and Kolkata Knight Riders bowler Sunil Narine was Player of the Season. This along with 2009, 2016, and 2021 are the only editions where a team topping the table at the end of league stage did not appear in the final.

The 2013 season of the Indian Premier League, abbreviated as IPL 6 or Pepsi IPL 2013, was the sixth season of the IPL, established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tournament featured nine teams and was held from 3 April to 26 May 2013. The opening ceremony was held at the Salt Lake Stadium in Kolkata on 2 April 2013. This was the first season with PepsiCo as the title sponsor. The Kolkata Knight Riders were the defending champions, having won the 2012 season. A spot fixing case was revealed by Delhi Police, leading to arrest of three cricketers from Rajasthan Royals and other persons. Mumbai Indians won the tournament for the first time, defeating Chennai Super Kings in the final by 23 runs. The tagline was sirf dekhne ka nayi! (Don't just watch!).

PepsiCo replaced DLF Ltd as the title sponsor starting with the 2013 season. DLF did not renew their contract after their initial five-year contract, for ₹ 2.50 billion, ended with the previous season. PepsiCo's contract is ₹ 3968 million for five years, ending with the 2017 season. In response to questions about the higher sponsorship costs compared to DLF's, a representative of PepsiCo said, "Our estimate is that we will get five to six times the value of the money we paid." However, Brand Finance had assessed the IPL's brand value to have fallen from $4.1 billion in 2010 to $2.9 billion in 2012, attributed to the decline in television ratings over the two years.

The 2014 season of the Indian Premier League, abbreviated as IPL 7 or Pepsi IPL 2014, was the seventh season of the IPL, a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tournament featured eight teams, one fewer than in 2013 after the withdrawal of the Pune Warriors India, and was held from 16 April 2014 to 1 June 2014. The opening ceremony was held in the UAE on 15 April 2014. Kolkata Knight Riders won the tournament, defeating Kings XI Punjab by 3 wickets with Manish Pandey declared the man of the match in the final. The average attendance for the tournament was 31,751. The tagline was Bulawa aaya hai (invitation has arrived).

A part of tournament was held outside India as Indian Home Minister Sushil Kumar Shinde declined to provide security for the league as the tournament took place at the same time as the 2014 Indian general election.[4] As a result, the tournament was jointly hosted by India and the United Arab Emirates. The opening 20 matches were held in the UAE at three different stadiums in Abu Dhabi, Dubai and Sharjah with the tournament returning to India on 2 May.

The player auction took place on 12 and 13 February 2014. Unlike previous seasons, the auction was in Indian Rupees as opposed to US dollars.

The 2015 season of the Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 8 or, for sponsorship reasons, Pepsi IPL 2015, was the eighth season of the IPL, a Twenty20 cricket league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tournament featured eight teams and was held from 8 April 2015 to 24 May 2015. The tournament's opening ceremony was held at the Salt Lake Stadium in Kolkata on 7 April 2015. Kolkata Knight Riders were the defending champions having won the title in the 2014 season. The tagline was India ka tyohar (the festival of India.)

On 24 May 2015, Mumbai Indians defeated Chennai Super Kings by 41 runs in the final at Eden Gardens, Kolkata, to win the IPL title for the second time. Mumbai captain Rohit Sharma was awarded player of the match in the final for his knock of 50 from 26 balls. Andre Russell of the Kolkata Knight Riders was named Most Valuable Player (MVP) of the season.

The 2016 season of the Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 9, and branded as Vivo IPL 2016 for sponsorship reasons, was the ninth season of the IPL, a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The season began on 9 April 2016, and concluded on 29 May 2016 with the playing of the finals match between Royal Challengers Bangalore and Sunrisers Hyderabad at M. Chinnaswamy Stadium in Bangalore. The tagline was Fun, fans, fantastic.

The 2016 season was the first IPL season to use LED stumps. Following the suspension of Chennai Super Kings and Rajasthan Royals for two years over a spot-fixing and betting scandal, the IPL allocated spots for two new franchises to take their place. The process would result in the establishment of the Gujarat Lions and Rising Pune Supergiants in 2016.

The championship was won by Sunrisers Hyderabad, marking the Hyderabad franchise's second IPL title, with Ben Cutting declared the man of the match in the final. Virat Kohli of Royal Challengers Bangalore was named the most valuable player of the tournament, and Mustafizur Rahman of Sunrisers Hyderabad was named the emerging player of the season. Virat Kohli of Royal Challengers Bangalore was the tournament's leading run-scorer with 973 runs and Bhuvneshwar Kumar of Sunrisers Hyderabad was the leading wicket-taker of the tournament with 23 wickets. Ever since the introduction of page playoff system, this is the only edition where a team ending outside of the top 2 at the end of league stage won an IPL title and only the third edition along with 2012 and 2021 where one of the top 2 teams missed out on a spot in the final.

The 2017 season of the Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 10 and branded as Vivo IPL 2017, was the tenth edition of the IPL, a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the BCCI in 2007. The tournament featured the eight teams that played in the previous season. The 2017 season started on 5 April 2017 and finished on 21 May 2017, with Hyderabad hosting the opening match and the final. Mumbai Indians won by 1 run against Rising Pune Supergiant in the final, winning their third title making them the first team to achieve the milestone. The tagline was waah re waah(10 years of IPL).

Sunrisers Hyderabad captain David Warner won the Orange Cap for the leading run-scorer of the tournament with 641 runs. Bhuvneshwar Kumar, also of Sunrisers Hyderabad, was awarded the Purple Cap for finishing as the leading wicket-taker of the tournament with 26 wickets. Rising Pune Supergiant's Ben Stokes was named the Most Valuable Player, while Basil Thampi of Gujarat Lions was named the Emerging Player of the Tournament.

The 2018 season of the Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 11, was the eleventh season of the IPL, a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the BCCI in 2007. The season, which was held from 7 April to 27 May, saw the return of the Chennai Super Kings and the Rajasthan Royals after serving two years of suspension for the involvement of their respective owners in the 2013 IPL betting case. Star Sports purchased the media rights at ₹16,347.5 crore ($2.55 billion) for five years starting from 2018. The tagline was Best vs Best.

Chennai Super Kings won by 8 wickets against Sunrisers Hyderabad in the final to win their third title. Sunrisers Hyderabad captain Kane Williamson won the Orange Cap for the leading run-scorer of the tournament with 735 runs. Andrew Tye, of Kings XI Punjab, was awarded the Purple Cap for finishing as the leading wicket-taker of the tournament with 24 wickets. Sunil Narine of Kolkata Knight Riders was named Most Valuable Player, also known as Man of the Series, while Rishabh Pant of Delhi Daredevils was named the Emerging Player of the Series.

The 2019 season of the Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 12, was the twelfth season of the IPL, a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. At one point other countries were considered to host the tournament, due to the Indian general elections but eventually the tournament was played entirely in India with the season commencing on 23 March. The tagline was Game banayega Name!(Game will make your name!)

India's opening match at the 2019 Cricket World Cup was postponed from 2 to 5 June as the BCCI were directed to maintain a mandatory 15-day gap between the conclusion of IPL and India's subsequent international fixture as per Lodha Committee's recommendation.

Delhi Daredevils were renamed as the Delhi Capitals, the franchise announced on 4 December 2018, and also released a new logo. Chennai Super Kings were the defending champions who won third title .

Mumbai Indians defeated the Chennai Super Kings by 1 run to win the final for their fourth title. David Warner won the Orange Cap for the leading run-scorer of the tournament with 692 runs. Imran Tahir, of Chennai Super Kings, was awarded the Purple Cap for finishing as the leading wicket-taker of the tournament with 26 wickets. Andre Russell of Kolkata Knight Riders was named the Most Valuable Player, and Shubman Gill also of Kolkata Knight Riders was named the Emerging Player of the Tournament.

The 2020 Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 13 and branded as Dream11 Indian Premier League 2020, was the thirteenth season of the IPL, a professional Twenty20 cricket (T20) league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2008. The tournament was originally scheduled to commence on 29 March 2020, but was suspended until 15 April due to the COVID-19 pandemic. After Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi announced on 14 April that the lockdown in India would last until at least 3 May 2020, the BCCI suspended the tournament indefinitely. On 2 August 2020, it was announced that the tournament would be played between 19 September and 10 November 2020 in the United Arab Emirates. The tagline was Ab Khel bolega: (Now game will speak.)

On 4 August 2020, Vivo pulled out as the title sponsor of the Indian Premier League (IPL) for the 2020 edition. On 18 August, fantasy cricket league platform Dream11 was named the title sponsor for the season with a bid of ₹222 crore (US$28 million).
Defending champions Mumbai Indians successfully retained their title with a five-wicket win over Delhi Capitals in the final on 10 November 2020.

The 2021 Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 14, or for sponsorship reasons, Vivo IPL 2021, was the fourteenth season of the Indian Premier League (IPL), a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tagline was Asli Picture Abhi Baaki Hai (Now the original picture will come).

Mumbai Indians were the two-time defending champions. Ahead of the tournament, Kings XI Punjab were renamed as the Punjab Kings. In March 2021, the BCCI announced the fixtures for the tournament. The tournament started on 9 April. However, on 4 May, the tournament was suspended indefinitely, after a rise in COVID-19 cases within the bio bubbles of some teams. At the time of the suspension, 31 of the scheduled 60 matches were still left to be played. On 29 May 2021, the BCCI announced that the emaining matches of the tournament would be played in the United Arab mirates in September and October 2021. The schedule for the remainder of he tournament was released in July 2021.

n the final, Chennai Super Kings beat Kolkata Knight Riders to win their ourth IPL title. Ruturaj Gaikwad scored the most runs in the tournament, while Harshal Patel took the most wickets and also won the Most Valuable Player award.

The 2022 Indian Premier League, also known as IPL 15 or for sponsorship reasons, Tata IPL 2022, was the fifteenth season of the Indian Premier League (IPL), a professional Twenty20 cricket league established by the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) in 2007. The tournament was played from 26 March 2022 to 29 May 2022. The group stage of the tournament was played entirely in the state of Maharashtra, with Mumbai and Pune hosting the matches. The full schedule of the tournament was announced on 6 March 2022.

The season saw the expansion of the league, with the addition of two new franchises. Therefore, this was the second season to have ten teams, after the 2011 tournament. Chennai Super Kings were the defending champions, having won their fourth title during the previous season.

In the final, Gujarat Titans beat Rajasthan Royals by seven wickets to win their first IPL title.

Review of Literature

IPL, since its inception in the year 2008 has gained popularity and success on an unrivaled scale. Thereby it's not surprising that a number of studies have already been dedicated to it. However, most of the studies concern themselves with sponsorship and bidding strategies. The returns of the sponsors have not yet been studied in explicit details which in fact is the motivation for our approach. The pricing of each player is of significance for the sponsors in order to acquire a line-up that ensures a successful season. A very simple approach can be used to derive the hedonic price equations for estimating a bid amount for each cricketer in the IPL auction. An integer-programming model is often the best one to be implemented for the efficient bidding strategy for the franchises. Various studies conducted from time to time, document in details a large amount of money as well as market research that goes into the IPL auctions. Consistent with the view, we stimulate the study that follows, to look at whether a successful season of a particular team translates into profits for the sponsors in terms of higher stock returns.

In this regard, Chakrabarty et al. conducted a study to identify whether sponsorship is important in the context of developing countries like India and also whether brand and event emotions play a mediating role in creating consumer attitudes towards the sponsor brand as a result of an event sponsorship. This paper was one of the first in the Indian context that studies the investors sentiment generated by sporting events. Sporting events and their impact on stock market has inspired a number of studies in other countries, for time to time, especially in recent years. No relation was found between the success of the New Zealand national rugby team and the stock market reaction in the country overall. However, there seemed to exist a strong relationship between the performance of the English national soccer team and the change in the price of shares traded on the London stock exchange showing a strong impact of investors sentiments.

A cross-country analysis was reported to show those losses in soccer matches have an economically and statistically significant negative effect on the losing country's stock market. An event study revealed that sports outcome has a significant impact on stock market returns of sponsors. A similar correlation between the stock market returns and victories or defeats in football matches across Europe using an event study approach was also observed. It is therefore in accordance with existing research that we expect a successful season by a sports team to generate a sense of confidence in investors which might have a considerably profitable bearing on the stock returns of the sponsors. This view is empirically tested in the study that follows. Event study approach over the years has emerged has an important tool in the world of finance and economics. Given all market participants being rational, security prices will be affected by the occurrence of an event. An event study is an empirical investigation of the relationship between security prices and economic events. To that effect, over time numerous papers have constructed an event study analysis to report empirically the financial and economic significance of various events.

It has often been observed the properties of frequently and infrequently traded stocks vary widely. Frequently or daily traded stocks are often reported to show huge numbers of zero and small numbers of large non zero returns. The cause for this abnormality is suspected to be the departure of daily returns from normal distributions. There have been certain approaches suggested, from time to time in order to overcome the problem of thin trading. An overall cross-sectional study was found to remedy the problem of extremely close-set events to a reasonable extent. On the other hand, Boehmer, Masumeci, and Poulsen reported that infrequently traded stocks suffer from the problem of nonsynchronous returns on stock and even market indices. Ordinary least squares estimate of market model parameters is found to be biased and inconsistent in the presence of non-synchronous trading elements in the data.

One of the most popular methodologies used in compiling the normal returns in an event study is the 'market model' approach. In order for the market model to be efficient, the parameters should be efficient. However, some studies suggest that the intercept of the model $\alpha$is more stable than the coefficient of the market index. Mandelker introduced the portfolio method whereby we calculate Average Abnormal Returns for each firm so as to combat the problem caused by the difference invariance across firms and correlated returns. In the context of stock returns of sponsors, this method is significant because the inherent volatility of stock prices varies widely from firm to firm. Hence, in order to separate the impact of the event, it is required the stock returns of firms are studied either in isolation or standardized across firms. Our baseline strategy therefore, for the analysis that follows, is to formulate an event study using the market model and extend it to a firm-specific reporting for more robust results. This is because according to Cowan and Rizzo daily returns result in poorly specified statistical test approximations

Conceptual Framework

History vs Modern-day of Sponsorship

Sponsorships are an important part of the sports world. The cooperation between companies and athletes or teams is a win-win strategy from which both sides can benefit. While sponsorship donations as a promotional strategy increase brand prestige and bring long-term economic benefits, athletes can derive material and financial benefits from their sporting activities and pursue their passion for sports on a professional level. This collaboration between athletes and companies sounds natural to us today. But that wasn't always the case. A look into the past shows us that this relationship only established with the development of sport as a popular social activity and the spread of television in everyday life.

The origins of sport sponsorship:

Although many sports developed in the 19th century, it took a long time for them to gain mainstream acceptance in society. The first steps were taken in 1896 with the revival of the Olympic Games in Athens. The film manufacturer Kodak discovered the potential of sport for improving the company's image and financially supported the sporting highlight. Four years later, several Swedish companies became sponsors of the Olympic event in Stockholm. Well-known brands slowly began to incorporate major sporting events, which enjoyed increasing popularity and attracted more and more viewers, into their advertising strategy.

The media boom followed in the second half of the 20th century. Radio and television broadcasted important sporting events and further associated advertising with sport. In Germany, it mainly affected the rising football industry in the form of perimeter and jersey advertising. The Wormatia Worms football team started the first attempt in 1967 with the lettering "CAT" for the construction machinery manufacturer "Caterpillar" to overcome a financial bottleneck. The negative reaction of the German Football Association led to the termination of the cooperation. The final breakthrough came in 1972. The liqueur brand Jägermeister sponsored Eintracht Braunschweig with the nowadays modest sum of 160,000 DM. Other teams soon followed the Lower Saxony football club, which led to shirt advertising in the Bundesliga being officially approved. Other sports also began to benefit from this boom.

On the international level, the United States has made a name for itself in terms of advertising and sports. Stars like football player Frank Gifford or baseball pro Bob Uecker made sensational deals with well-known brands. In addition, viewers were introduced to the American sports television network ESPN in 1979, which soon developed into a lucrative space for advertising placements. The earnings from the Montreal Olympics showed just how far the sports business has come in just a few short years. 628 companies sponsored around seven million dollars for the sports highlight of 1976. In addition, top athletes began to sign sponsorship contracts that are taken for granted today, which meant that they were increasingly able to act independently instead of being strictly tied to their national teams.

Sport sponsorships today

Today, commercialization in sport has reached unbelievable proportions. Entire events and television programs have been sponsored by big names in business since the 1990s. Stadiums supported by name sponsorship are springing up around the world. In this area, the Volks park stadium in Hamburg is a pioneer in Germany. It changed sponsors three times between 2001 and 2015. The spectrum of sponsors ranges from sports betting providers such as Betway, which is now making a name for itself as an online sports betting site, to the giants of the automotive industry such as BMW or Opel.

The integration of the digital world is relatively new in the business. A message on Twitter or an image on Instagram reaches numerous potential customers within a very short time. Sponsored sports teams or athletes who have millions of followers are often used as successful advertising faces and brand ambassadors. Furthermore, they no longer shy away from promoting the slowly emerging eSports as well as amateur sports. Overall, many brands these days are adopting more aggressive advertising strategies and draw the attention of their viewers through creativity. For example, Nike sponsored an eighty-year-old runner in the Berlin Marathon and received more attention than the official sponsor Adidas. The so-called ambush marketing put Nike in the foreground of the big event.

The examples show that after the wave of commercialization in sports, sponsorships have now become a natural part of the sports world. Over the years, the mutual interdependence has become a profitable proposition for both brands and athletes.

The Title Sponsors of IPL from 2008-2022

1) 2008 TO 2012: DLF (40 CRORE PER ANNUM)

DLF came into the instant limelight when it bagged the title sponsorship rights of the first-ever edition of the Indian premier league. The Gurugram-based real estate company paid BCCI 40 CR per annum. After this DLF remained the title sponsor of IPL from 2008-to 2012. DLF was the first brand that became the first title sponsor of IPL.

This move raised several eyebrows but eventually, the world understood what a smart move that was from DLF as they became a household name through IPL. DLF remained the title sponsor of IPL in 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, and 2012.

2) 2013 TO 2015: PEPSI (79.4 CRORE PER ANNUM)

The soft drink giant Pepsi took over from DLF and grabbed the deal at 396 Crore for five years. However, they pulled out 2 years before the stipulated period as IPL attracted some bad publicity due to the corruption & fixing scandal.

The fixing scandal in IPL came in 2015 which led to the suspension of 2 teams from IPL. Chennai Super Kings and Rajasthan Royals were suspended for two years by Lodha Committee. After this Pepsi terminated the contract of 5 years in just 3 years only. So in this way, Pepsi just paid 238.2 crores to BCCI for 3 years and served as the title sponsor of IPL for IPL 2013, 2014, and 2015.

3) 2016 TO 2017: VIVO (100 CRORES PER ANNUM)

BCCI was in a spot of bother when Pepsi decided to pull out of the sponsorship deal. However, Chinese mobile company VIVO jumped in & grabbed that opportunity.

Vivo remained the title sponsor of IPL for 2017 and 2018 after grabbing this opportunity. They bought the title rights for the remaining two years paying 100 Crore per annum to BCCI. The brand VIVO benefitted immensely and made giant strides in the Indian mobile market.

4) 2018 TO 2019: VIVO (439.8 CRORES PER ANNUM)

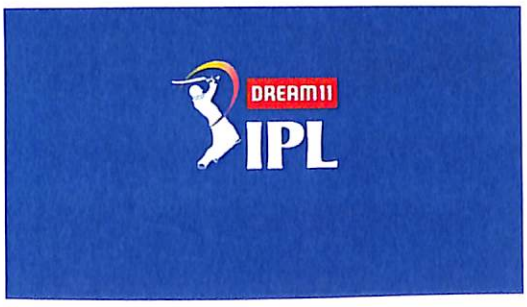

After a resounding success of their previous deal, VIVO once again bagged the title rights of IPL for 5 years. This time they upped the bar & paid an astounding amount of 2199 Crore for 5 years, outbidding their business rivals Oppo.

But the deal came to a premature end. VIVO had to pull out as the tensions between the Indo-China border escalated. In this way, VIVO also served as the title sponsor of IPL in 2018 and 2019.

5) 2020: DREAM 11 (222 CRORES PER ANNUM)

What VIVO did for BCCI in 2016, Dream 11 did in 2020. After the Chinese Mobile manufacturer pulled out of the deal, the fantasy sports platform came on board and made a deal for 222 Crore. After this deal, BCCI received 217.80 crores less from the previous contract with Vivo.

Dream 11 is one of the world's top fantasy platforms and the deal seemed to work wonders for them. It became a household name due to its smart marketing strategies and catchy advertisement during the recent season of IPL.

The brand IPL seems to be unstoppable at the moment and by virtue of that, we will continue to see staggering amounts for the title sponsorship in the upcoming seasons. For the upcoming seasons, Dream XI is to pay 240 crores for the 2nd year and 240 crores for the 3rd year.

6) 2021: VIVO IPL (439.8 CRORES PER ANNUM)

VIVO once again served as the Title Sponsor for the 2021 IPL in the hope that India-China border tension will ease out. For this year IPL Vivo paid the same amount as it paid before Dream XI. BCCI earned whopping 439.8 crores for title sponsorship of IPL 2021. But the Chinese manufacturing company has to pull out after this year due to the Indo-China border clash. In this way, Vivo served a total of 5 years as title sponsor.

7) 2022 TO 2023: TATA GROUP (335 CRORES PER ANNUM)

The most reputed Industrial group in India, TATA Group replaced the Chinese manufacturing company VIVO for 2022 and 2023 as the title sponsor for IPL. For these two years, TATA group will pay 335 crores each year. In these two years, IPL other than a new title sponsor is that two new teams are also added which makes it to a total of 10 teams tournaments.

Research Methodology

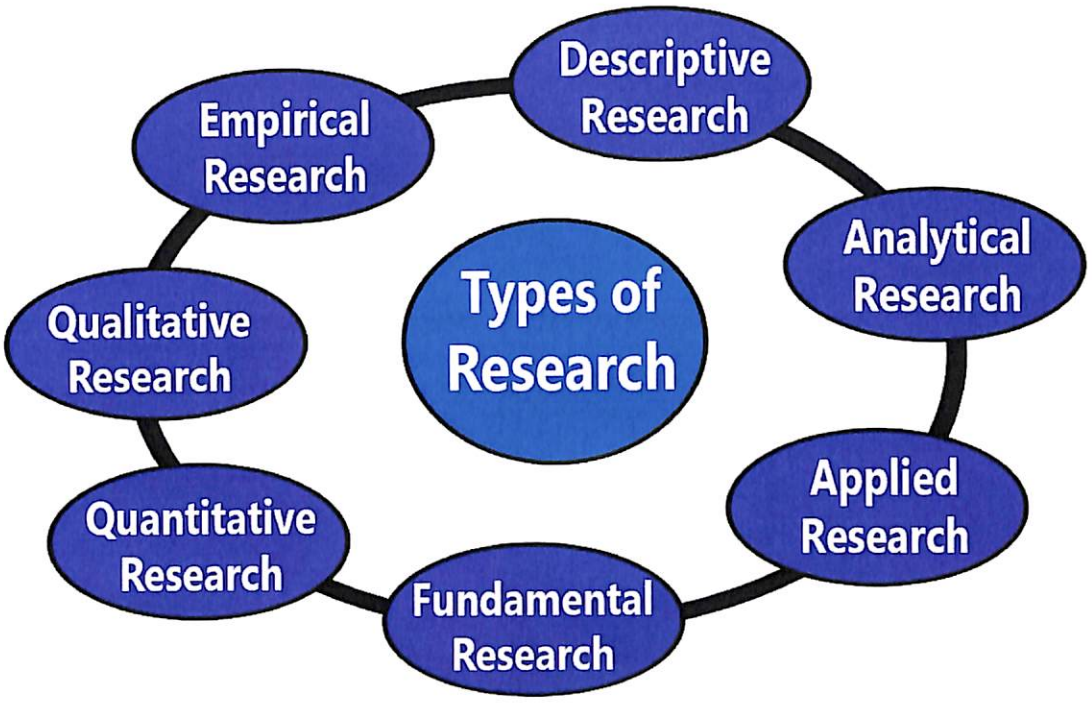

.1 Research Methodology

ecently the critical aspect of research, namely research methodology, receives ttle attention. As a result, much research, particularly in the social sciences, nvolves an excessive amount of word spinning and quotes. As a result, a lot of esearch is pointless. In the context of planning and development, it's worth oting that the importance of the study is determined by its quality rather than ts quantity. As a result, persons involved in research must pay close attention to reating and following suitable techniques throughout the research process to mprove the quality of the research. Although the process varies depending on he subject, the essential approach to research stays the same.

1.2 What is Research?

Research is a voyage of discovery. Research may also be defined as a scientific nd methodical search for relevant information on a particular topic. Research s, in reality, an art of scientific investigation. According to Clifford Woody, in is own words "Research entails defining and redefining problems, formulating ypotheses or suggested solutions, collecting, organizing, and evaluating data, deducing and arriving at conclusions, and finally carefully testing the conclusions to determine if they fit the formulating hypothesis". The goal of the research is to find answers to problems via the use of scientific processes. The major purpose of research is to uncover the truth that has been suppressed and has yet to be uncovered. Why do people undertake research? Factors such as Government instructions, work conditions, curiosity about new things, desire to comprehend causal linkages, societal thinking and awakening, and other causes may also inspire (or push) people to conduct the research

.3 Types Of Research

4.4 Basic Types of Research are:

1, Descriptive vs Analytical

Descriptive encompasses several types of surveys and fact-finding inquiries. The most important goal of descriptive research is to describe the current condition of circumstances. The major feature of this approach is that the researcher does not influence the variables; he can only describe what has occurred or is currently occurring. These kinds of studies include attempts by researchers to discover the causes even though they are unable to control the variables. Survey methods of various types, including comparative and correlational approaches, are used in descriptive research. Analytical research, on the other hand, requires the researcher to evaluate facts or information that is already accessible to produce a critical assessment of the material.

Applied vs Fundamental pplied research tries to identify a solution to a problem that a society or an dustrial/business organization is now confronting. "'Pure' or 'basic' research is fined as obtaining data for the sake of gathering knowledge." Fundamental search is primarily focused on making broad generalizations and formulating eories. Fundamental research might include studies of natural phenomena or re mathematics. The main goal of applied research is to find a solution to an gent practical problem, whereas basic fundamental research aims to locate formation that has a wide range of applications and thereby contributes to the eviously structured body of scientific knowledge.

Quantitative vs Qualitative uantitative research is centred on determining the quantity or amount of mething. It can be used to describe phenomena that have a numerical value. ualitative research, on the other hand, is concerned with qualitative enomena, such as those involving or about quality or kind. In the behavioural iences, where the goal is to identify the fundamental causes of human haviour, qualitative research is very significant. We may analyse the many ements that push individuals to behave in a certain way or make them like or test a certain thing through such research.

Conceptual vs Empirical

he term "conceptual research" refers to the study that is concerned with ostract ideas or theories. Philosophers and intellectuals commonly utilise it to uild new concepts or reinterpret current ones. An empirical study, on the other and, depends solely on experience or observation, typically without concern or system or theory. When the proof is needed that some factors impact other ariables in some way, an empirical study is a method to go. Experiments and mpirical research are now often regarded as the strongest sources of evidence or a particular idea. All other sorts of research are variants of one or more of ne above-mentioned methodologies, dependent on the study's objective, the me it takes to complete it, the environment in which it is conducted, or some ther relevant feature.

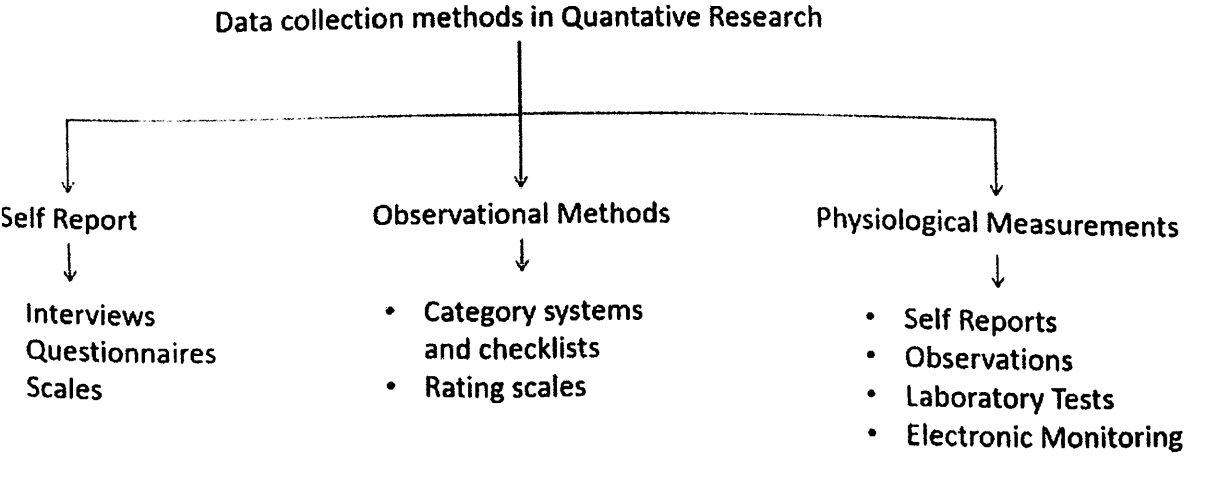

Primary Data

ere are basic approaches to data collections using primary methods:

.1 Quantitative Research Approach

e quantitative approach includes the creation of quantitative data that can be omitted to strict quantitative examination in a formal and disciplined manner.

.2 Qualitative research approach:

ɛ subjective assessment of attitudes, views, and behavior is central to the ılitative research approach. In this case, research is based on the researcher's ɜervations and impressions. Such a method of study yields outcomes that are ıer non-quantitative or have not been submitted to rigorous quantitative ılysis. Focus group interviews, projective approaches, and depth interviews often utilized methodologies.

Research Design:

research design is a method, framework, or technique for obtaining an ɜwer to a research topic while controlling variation."

5.1 Type of research design:

descriptive research design was used for this particular project.

7 Research Instrument:-

ıe instrument used for gathering data was a questionnaire. To supplement the imary data and to facilitate the process of drawing inference, secondary data ıs collected from published sources like magazines, journals, newspapers, ɛbsites, etc.

7.1 Primary Data

ıe questionnaire aimed at discovering the underlying motives and desires. It as also designed to find out how people feel or what they think about this ırticular subject to analyze the various factors which motivate people to ɛhave in a particular manner or which make people like or dislike.

7.2 Secondary data

rticles on effectiveness of sponsorship in IPL are taken from journals, articles, agazines published from time to time through the internet.

8 Sample Design and Size

this research project, Descriptive and Applied research design is used. dgment and convenience sampling methods will be used to get information out people's views and opinions. This method is used because we are terested in exploring gender, age, and interest in the topic. A structured uestionnaire is prepared and a sample of 101 respondents is taken from the age ategory of 15 & above, wherein respondents in the category 21-25 years of age ontributed the most.

.9 Sampling Size

t indicates the number of people to be surveyed. Though large samples give nore reliable results than small samples, due to constraints of time and location, he sample size was restricted to 101 respondents. The respondents belong to ifferent income groups and professions.

1.10 Sampling Unit

t defines the target population that will be sampled i.e. it answers who is to be surveyed. In this study, the sampling unit is the people of majorly around Mumbai and Navi Mumbai.

4.11 Tools and Techniques of Analysis:

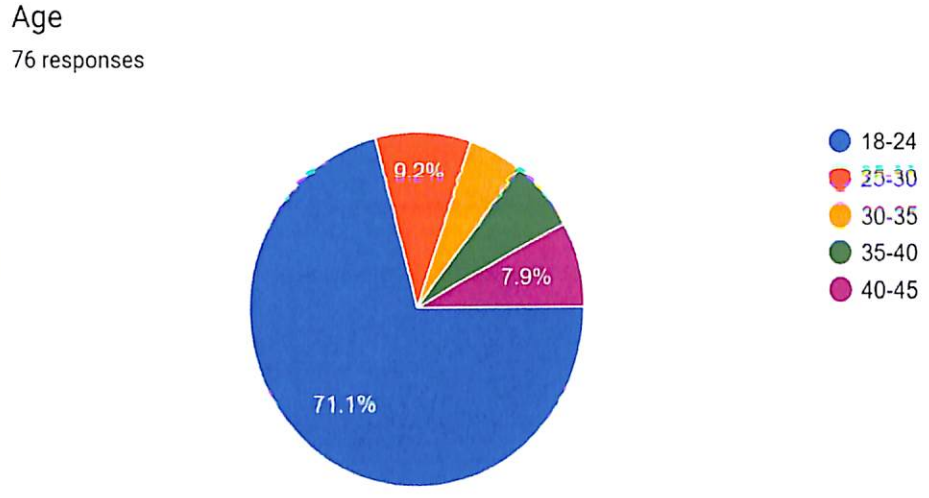

The data so far collected will be analyzed through the application of statistical techniques, such as pie charts.

CHAPTER 5

Data Interpretation

ta interpretation is the process of evaluating, cleansing, manipulating, and splaying data to identify useful information, conclude, and support decision-aking. In diverse business science and sociology domains, data interpretation cludes a variety of features and techniques, including multiple methodologies der a variety of labels.

What was the average age of the respondents?

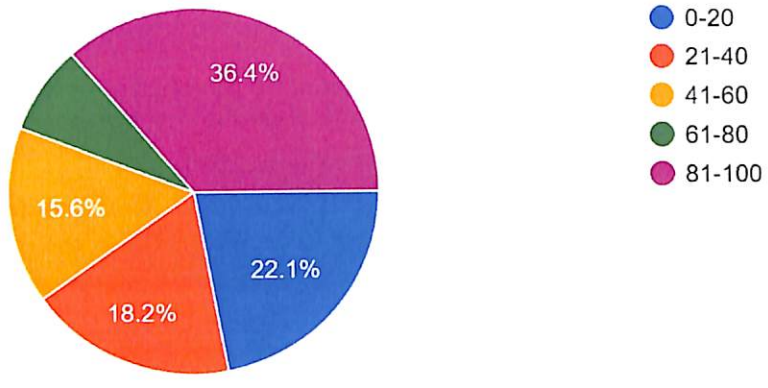

Objective: The purpose of asking this question is to find the average age of the respondents.

Data interpretation: The above graph shows us that most of the respondents are in the age group of 18-24. The next group of people who took part in this survey is people from the 25-30 age group who are of similar age to the surveyor and share the same interest. This shows that the respondents are mostly from the age group of 18-24 and that they are adults, the opinions on this survey will majorly be from an adult's point of view.
