About Simulations

Simulations give students real-world experiences while allowing them to apply concepts, make decisions, and experience the result of their choices from the safety of the classroom.

Educators who have taught with these powerful tools can attest to the learning they ignite. Simulations give educators the power to increase student success through an immersive learning experience, helping students apply key learnings, obtain new skills, and develop leadership skills that prepare them for the real world.

For those who haven't taught with simulations before-or for those looking to improve their simulation teaching skills-we put together this fdp for teaching with simulations. This hands-on FDP using Harvard simulation, offers practical advice to sharpen educators' competency in succeeding in engaging students.

Benefits of Using Simulations

- Get exclusive insights and best practices about how to get the most out of the simulation.
- Discover what simulation is, what levels and courses it is best-suited for, and what learning objectives it can help you address.
- Understand how to navigate the faculty interface and set up the simulation to best-suit your classroom.
- See how your students will experience the simulation.

Who Can Attend?

The intended participants for this Faculty Development Program may include:

- Faculty members from colleges, universities and management institutions seeking to enhance their teaching by using innovative pedagogies.
- Research scholars
- Corporate, Government & non-government professionals involved in training, development and research.

Our Vision

- To contribute to national progress through creation of knowledge based society.

Our Mission

- To establish a centre of academic excellence which nurtures passion for learning and creative thinking.
- To focus on progressive education by offering comprehensive, innovative & contemporary education programmes.
- To reduce the educational inequity by providing equal opportunities to all classes of society.
- To provide lifelong learning avenues for students and professionals to enhance their competency and employability.

About PGDM

MKES-IMSR provides an AICTE-approved 2-year PGDM program with various specializations in the second year. This skill-based program emphasizes hands-on learning through projects and real-market exposure. Approved by AICTE, the industry-focused curriculum keeps students updated with current demands.
